STATE NEWS.

Matthew G. Jones, boiler-maker, fell from the roof of the Raleigh Iron Works Friday afternoon and sustained injuries from which he died. He leaves a wife and three children.

Rev. Willis G. Clark, rector of Saint Andrew's Church, Birmingham, has notified the members of his church that he has accepted a call to Trinity Episcopal church of Asheville.

The police of Kannapolis on Friday seized a big automobile and three suitcases containing 64 pints of liquor. The owner of the outfit escape with one suit case.

According to the views and best informed Democratic leaders in the State, there has developed a strong probability that there will after all be a third candidate for Governor, the new candidate in process of grooming being Gen. Julian S. Carr.

Col. Al. Fairbrother, the versatile editor of Everything, Greensboro, suffered two hemorrhages in Charlotte one day last week. He left later in the day for Greensboro, saying that he would go to Baltimore to consult a specialist.

"Everything points to the most successful State Fair that has been held in the fifty-four years' history of the Fair," says Col. Joseph E. Pogue, speaking about the prospects for the big annual event which will be held this year October 18-23.

Miss Fannie E. Heck, for thirty years president of the Woman's Missionary society, of the North Carolina convention, and for twenty years president of the Woman's Missionary society of the Southern Baptist convention, died at her home in Raleigh on August 25.

The Highland Cordage Company of Hickory, will commence work next week on the erection of its mill in Highland. The building will be two stories, 75x100 feet. Cotton twine, clotheslines and sash weight will be made.

Elliott Merrick, a 10-year-old negro boy, stole $300 in cash from the Farmers and Merchants bank of Lumberton, last Friday. The cashier stepped out a moment, asking one of the directors who was present in the bank to watch for him. During his absence the sneak slipped around behind the counter and grabbing a package of money, slipped out without detection. When the money was missed officers were notified and in a short time he was under arrest and all the money but $22 recovered.

New Hanover county has received high praise from the United States Health service, which in part says: "So far as statistics are available at the present moment, no other rural county in the entire South is equal to New Hanover in its school sanitation. If any other county has as good school sanitation as New Hanover, it certainly should not hide its light under a bushel."

At a meeting of the Brown Memorial association held at Granite Quarry in Rowan county last week it was decided to preserve the old family burying-ground which lies near the Rock House which was the home of Michael Braun, the father of the large family whose descendants compose the association. About 500 attended the annual gathering and there was a picnic dinner.

The A. & M. College will open September 2 and President Hill says that the outlook is for an attendance that will be very considerably in advance of the registration for last year, when 767 students entered. The college farm, the buildings and grounds and the equipment was a cause for enthusiastic praise by the 500 and more farmers and their wives and daughters who attended the State Farmers' Convention at Raleigh last week.

After a three day session marked by an attendance of more than 500 farmers from every section of the State, the State Farmers' Convention adjourned Thursday at Raleigh to meet there again next year. The following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Roger A. Derby, Jackson Springs; vice presidents, W. R. Wright, Ingold; George A. Holderness, Tarboro; and R. N. Berber, Waynesville.

Mrs. L. H. Barker, a world-wide prison missionary, has been instrumental in establishing a home for the friendless at the Lory Mill in the western part of Gastonia. The building which has been selected for the home has 14 rooms and an assembly hall. Mrs. Scroggins of Charlotte has been secured as matron for the home and has already begun her work. Mrs. Barker is known throughout the prisons of this country as "The Little Mother," she having visited the prisons of all the larger cities in more than 18 States.

A very black and a very smart negro of various kinds, including a couple of dozen chickens which last item, if true, indicates how smooth a talker he must have been. It is alleged he did preach, Rev. Douglas McDuffy, is resting in Catawba county jail. He talked Hickory negroes out of $250 in cash. It is said, together with supplies this in nine days' preaching, picturing the while the beauties of a free school for negro youths in Atlantic City. Whether he sent two negro boys to enter school.

Birth of a Play.
Charles Frohman could see a play in anything. A Chicago journalist once wrote to him: "Dear Sir—Why couldn't a play be written round 'Curfew Shall Not Ring Tonight'?" Mr. Frohman saw the thing in a flash, and wrote back: "Dear Sir—An excellent idea. Come and see me." Two days later he got a wire from Chicago: "Can't come. If used send me $500." A check was forthwith made out and sent. Meanwhile David Belasco was called in and "The Heart of Maryland" was written, and proved a marvellous success.

HOW TO REDUCE WEIGHT Best Plan.

Philadelphia Record.

Medical treatment is hardly ever required to relieve obesity. The people who are too fat, too bulky or too heavy can change their appearance and decrease their weight without the aid of a physician if they are in good health. If a man is 20 pounds too heavy he may bring himself down to his normal weight by systematic daily exercise in the open air. Walking is the simplest of all exercises for reducing the weight. A five-mile walk every day—on stormy days as well as clear days—is the safest and surest remedy for obesity.

Dieting is best begun by dispensing with methods of reducing the weight and girth and of mitigating some of the numerous corporeal infirmities. The middle aged, who are very fat, are especially benefited by dieting. They should, however, begin limiting the diet very gradually. Broadly speaking, "cutting out all starches and sweets from the diet" is all that need be done. This is permissible for a short time, but must not be done continuously, otherwise the health will deteriorate. Whenever for any reason of ill health the weight must be reduced rapidly, a person should place himself under the care of a physician.

Dieting is best begun by dispensing with everything sweet. Omit sugar from the tea, coffee or chocolate. No candy, cake, pie nor sweet desserts should be eaten. Eat very sparingly of roots and vegetables grown underground. Confine the diet chiefly to meat (beef or mutton), fish, lettuce, celery, tomatoes, spinach, cucumbers, onions, watercress, cabbage, stale or toasted bread and acid fruits.

Limit the fluids taken—never drink anything during a meal, drink after finishing the meal. Beer, porter, champagne and every form of alcoholic beverage must be avoided. Peanuts are excellent articles of food for the corpulent and most enjoyable as a dessert.

There is always some danger of doing serious injury to the body in attempting to reduce the weight. It should be borne in mind that an increase in flesh and weight is normal and natural in many families as they approach middle life. If one has always been fat from childhood to middle age, to try to reduce the weight materially would be only at the expense of injury to the health.

Remedies advertised to reduce adipose tissue are sometimes efficient, but they invariably cause wasting and anaemia—a condition which is fatal to beauty and dangerous to life.

ADVICE TO HUSBANDS AND WIVES.

Use Common Sense to Avoid Divorce Court, Say Couple Wedded 59 Years.—(Philadelphia American.)

How to make the wedded life happy was told by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bittling, who observed the fifty-ninth anniversary of their marriage in their home, 1108 Porter street, yesterday.

Any young married pair can steel clear of the divorce courts and remain happy if they will use a little common sense, say the aged pair. Mrs. Bittling's recipe for marital smoothness follows:

"Make it a point to be good natured in the morning and the rest of the day will take care of itself."

"When your husband gets cranky put on your bonnet and walk out of the house. Remain away until you think he is worrying about you."

"Don't expect your husband to crawl out of bed in the middle of the night and walk the floor with the baby. He has worked hard all day to earn money, and there is no reason why he should do your work."

"Don't make a Lizzie out of your husband by insisting that he ask your permission every time he wants to go out."

"Keep yourself young by going to dances and to the movies. I have danced ever since I was a little girl, and I go to dances now, though I am 76 years old."

"Don't get nasty if your husband loses his job. Ten to one, if you give him a little encouragement, he will go out and get another before the family treasury becomes empty."

"Don't interfere with your husband's hobbies. I never interfered with mine."

"The young wife who is a poor cook wants to brace up on the cooking accomplishment right away, or soon she will be making a bee-line to the divorce courts. When I married I anchored my husband to his home by becoming the best pie-maker in the neighborhood."

"Soggy potatoes and burnt steak will start a matrimonial breeze in almost any home, that may later develop into a tornado."

"If your husband is economical and has a good business head, let him handle the money. It makes him feel more like a man."

"Always remember that your job is to run the home and care for the children. Don't try to saddle any of this work on to your husband after he has worked hard all day."

Mr. Bittling is 86 years old, and yesterday he said he had the best wife in Philadelphia. Here is his advice to young husbands on how to treat a wife:

"Don't lay all your bad luck on to your wife; ten to one, you are to blame yourself."

"Keep the honeymoon going until the end of time."

"Get a steady job and hang on to it for dear life; I held one job for forty years."

"Don't try to keep your wife tied up in the house all the time."

"Don't grunt and groan like a miser every time your wife asks for a new dress."

"Don't try to tell your wife how to run the house, for she knows more about it than you do."

"Don't take sides with the kids against your wife, for such doings split up the home."

WAR SUPPLIES HAVE ONLY STARTED MOVING LATELY

Washington, Aug.—That a great part of Europe's enormous war munition orders did not begin to move from the United States until comparatively recently was indicated by expert figures issued today by the commerce department. The statistics show that while exports of war supplies increased tremendously during the year ending with June, the greater part of the increase left the United States in the latter month.

The twelve-month period showed exports of explosives valued at $41,476,188 as against $6,272,197 in the preceding year. More than one-fourth of that total—$11,689,744—was shipped during June. Gunpowder showed exports of $3,234,549 in June, compared with $5,091,542 for the year.

Sixty-two aeroplanes were exported in June as against 152 for the entire year. In the preceding year only thirty-four were shipped. Nearly eight times as many automobile trucks were exported in June as in the entire year ending June 30, 1914. Of both passenger automobiles and trucks the exports for June were valued at $13,364,800, and for the year at $80,254,635. In the preceding year they were $26,574,574.

Figures for barbed wire, harness and saddles showed similar export conditions.

DR. WILEY AND HATS.

We fear our friend Dr. Harvey W. Wiley is becoming an extremist. Dr. Wiley recently inaugurated a campaign against kissing, and thereby stirred up the wrath and indignation of the fair sex who live in hopes of being kissed, and of the sterner mortals whose ambition it is to fulfill the hopes of the ladies.

Now Dr. Wiley says hats must go, and while thankful males, especially those who are blessed or afflicted with better or worse halves, would have joined in with zeal had he directed his campaign against women's hats, they are now disconsolate in that he has declared that it is the men's hats that must come off.

Dr. Wiley says that hats are the cause of baldness. The hatters' trust will, of course, go after the doctor's scalp as vigorously as did the canning interests not many years ago. Also a good many bald men who know perfectly well that hats were not the cause of baldness, and who can point with wisdom of experience to business or marital cares that superinduced their shiny state will wag their heads at this new faddist.

Then, too, this proposition is unfair in that known bald-heads are always men. If a woman ever loses her hair no man ever knows it, while every woman can detect every bald-headed man at sight.

We ourselves would propound a query for solution. There were no hats in Biblical days, yet there were bald heads, as witness the cry of the children to Elisha, "Go up, thou bald-head." Now what caused Elisha's baldness, Doctor?
